ON WITH THE GOOD PIGHT. The Assembly did nobly. The autocrats were put to rout. The People's Cause was all potent. Old-fashioned Justice had her inning. Like mist before the morning sun was swept away for the time the bureaucratic opposition to the Children's bill. It passed a third reading, and its final passage in the Assembly is assured.

But there's the Senste! The lobbying methods of the Bureaucrats, desperate in their efforts to retain their autogratic power, will be amployed strenuously to blockade there the righteous reform. And the Bureaucrats, led by Mr. ELBRIDGE T. GERRY, are indeed formidable. They have wealth, social standing, prejudice and organization

But there is one backer they conspicuously lack. And that is Justice. She is wholesouled on the side of the Children's bill.

And with Justice for an ally in the People's Cause there's no such word as "fail" in THE EVENING WORLD'S VOCAbulary.

FORGED CITY BONDS

Hoboken's Common Council Unearths Extensive Frauds.

Bogus Signatures of the Mayor on Improvement Scrip.

VETERAN CLERK MANSELL ACCUSED

He Is Arraigned in Court, but Refuses to Answer Questions.

Hoboken is all agog again over new discoveries of official rescality. This time it is the fraudulent issue of city bonds by means of forged signatures to an unknown amount.

Assistant City Clerk William C. Mansell i believed to be the guilty official, and has already been arrested and committed to the city prison to await the action of the Grand

Only two fraudulent bonds, amounting in the aggregate, with interest, to $1,690, have yet been discovered, but it is believed that Mansell's operations, which extend over at least two years, will be found to be more extensive than at present appears, and that many thousands of dollars will be involved in the fraudulent transactions.

The startling discovery has only just been nade by Comptroller Kaufmann, who was called upon to compare a city improvement certificate book. He couldn't find the number, which was 1,129, or the stub.

Suspicions were at once aroused and an examination of the book disclosed the fact that the stubs had been carefully cut out in various places and the edges of the papers pasted together so as to conceal the mutilation.

The certificates were issued in 1886 and 1887 to pay for improvements in Clinton street, which Contractor P. T. Plunkett had charge of, the entire work to cost $8,300. They were payable in two years and bore 6 per cent, interest. They have just begun to fell due.

They were payable in two years and bore of per cent, interest. They have just begun to fall due.

One of them was presented on March 1, and Treasurer Smith drew the city's check for the amount, which was $846. The signatures on both of these certificates were discovered to be forgeries yesterday afternoon. That of ex-Mayor Kerr was very clumsily done, while that of City Clerk McDermott was simply traced over the impression of a red-ink stamp.

A secret meeting of the Common Council of Hoboken was held last evening, at which Chairman Winges and Messrs. Erlenkotter, Timken, Kelly, Bruggemann and Malouey were present.

It was here that the revelation was first made. They produced a sensation. The books were sent for and upon investigation it was found that eleven other certificates with the corresponding stubs were missing. The numbers are: 1317, 1311, 1320, 1343, 1345, 1388, 1203, 1223, 1265, 1285, and 1297.

Suspicion at once pointed to Mansell, who during this entire secret session was at work in the clerk's office. The body of both certificates was in his hand-writing, and it was known that he had access to all the papers in the City Clerk's office, and had charge of the business of issuing these certificates.

He was arrested by Chief of Police Donovan at 10 o'clock last night in his office, and on being confronted with the forged certificates denied all knowledge of them, but admitted that he had filled them up, and that the writing, except the signatures, was his own.

He was placed in the custody of the Chief, while the Councilmen continued their investigation up to 3 o'clock this morning: It appeared that Hobert J. Dalton, a Jersey City banker, who died last January, had negotiated one of the certificates, and his name was endorse on it. His son was sent for and arrived after midnight.

He immediately pronounced the signature a forgery, but said that his father had for many years negotiated the Hoboken City scrip for Mausell, in whom he had always placed implicit confidence. When his father died he owned a large number of certificates which he divided among his children in his assistant to the City Clerk, and his honesty has not once been questioned.

A leading member of the Common Council and one of the "big combine" said to a reporter this morning: "I have had my eye on Mansell for some time past, for I suspected that something was wrong."

"Do you think he had any confederates?"

"No, because it would have been perfectly easy for him to accomplish the thing alone, much easier, in fact, than if he had an accomplice."

Several other city officials, including Comp. troller Kaulmann, City Clerk McDermott and Chief of Police Donovan, also expressed the opinion that Mansell worked the scheme alone. His relations with Banker Dalton, of Jersey City, were such that he could have worked off the fraudulent bonds upon him worked off the fraudulent bonds upon him without suspicion.

The complaint against Mansell was drawn up by City Attorney Minturn on an affidavit by City Clerk McDermott which directly charges Mansell with having committed the forgeries on the bonds and knowing all about the frauds.

The outstanding improvement certificates will be coming in more rapidly now than ever, and it is fully believed that they will disclose evidence of further crookedness on the part of Mansell. The latter has been working hard for some time past to secure the regular Democratic nomination for the office of Water Register, the election occurring next month.

Deshler moved in the best of society and his family was one of the oldest and most respected in the town. His father is well-todo, and is secretary of one of the large insurance companies in this city. His son, Robert, is also rich, being Superintendent of the New Jersey Rubber Company in New Brunswick, as well as the executor of the Christopher Meyer estate, which amounts to about $10,000,000.

Deshler, however, has proved a sort of Jonah with the various public officials under whom he served. He was bookkeeper for County Collector Hart Moor, who served a term for embezzlement. He also served under Collector Letson, who was found guilty embez-zling county funds and sent to State prison. He was bookkeeper for Collector Levi D. Black Chinese and Japanese silks are also greatly in requisition. This branch is complete in all its details. The colored silks, which are of great beauty, comprise those from India, China, Lyons, Switzerland and those of home manufacture. They are both plain and figured, and one kind in particular, the twenty-two-inch round cord rich faille française, merits special mention.

The millinery department has been enriched with hats and bonnets of the latest Parisian fashions, which form an extremely brilliant display. This department vies in its variety of form, taste and originality with that of any in Paris. The firm has also given special attention to the line of children's dress and school hats, and in parasols and sun umbrellas nothing has been left undone. Gray is the fashionable color, but black and white plaids and stripes are in demand. Macy & Co, have originated an exquisite parasol of hand-embroidered silk, but instead of the lace hanging from the border it is trimmed upon the ribs. The effect is a surprise and a charm, and promises to be wonderfully successful.

Ladies who wish for well-made cloaks and jackets should not omit to visit this department. The cloaks are unique in taste and modelling and the jackets call for especial praise. Mention, too, must be made of the bewitching silk house waists and Heuriettas.

IS TOM BRENNAN DOOMED?

EX-SENATOR CULLEN SLATED AS HIS SUCCESSOR.

President Thomas S. Brennan, of the Board of Charities and Correction, has returned from a trip to the South, but his jaunt seems not to have benefited him much, if the look of gloom which has supplanted the hitherto habitual smile on his handsome face may be considered a criterion.

It was not Commissioner Brennan's health but his political prospects which were suffering and which occasioned his visit to a Southern clime.

Strangely enough he sought the same region for a cure for his trouble that Fire Commissioner Richard Croker, sought for the benefit of his health.

The truth of the matter is that Mr. Brennan heard it whispered that the great men of Tammany had concluded that he had been in the Charity Board long enough and determined that some other faithful brave should be rewarded with his position on the expiration of his term, May 1.

Commissioner Brennan has been in the Board continuously since about 1874, and previous to his holding a Commissionership was Warden of Belevue Hospital.

He has been considered as having a life lease of the position, and had about reached the same conclusion himself when his hope was rudely shattered by the same conclusion himself when his hope was rudely shattered by the story that his was rudely shattered by the story that his scalp was wanted.

On hearing this the big Commissioner posted off to South Carolina to labor with Big Chief Croker, and his friends in the city put in big licks with the authorities at home, but all to no purpose.

The position has been promised, and Mr. Croker was inexorable in his determination that ex-Senator John J. Cullen shall succeed Commissioner Brennan.

Ex-Senator Cullen is an uncompromising Tammany man, a resident of Mr. Croker's district, the Eighteenth, and has held no office since he was succeeded in the Legislature by Senator Stadler two years ago.

Peter Mitchell, counsel for Mc-Adam, delivered a two-hour argument to show that the questions were immaterial, improper and incompetent.

Charles Phillipsen, the manager of the North River Fish and Game Company, who swore before the Commissioners that he never paid a cent bribery to any one for market stand privileges, afterwards confessed privately that he did pay McAdam, for Kelso, $3,000, then ran away and was caught, brought back and indicted for perjury, is in the Tombs waiting for a bondsman in $7,500, the bail fixed by Recorder Smyth this morning.

The stock market showed an improving tenlency to-day, and prices advanced right through the list. The rise was not interrupted by the failure of DeMott & Durant, particulars concorning which are given elsewhere.

THE MURDERESS'S STORY.

MRS. LEBKUCHNER TELLS IT GARRULOUSLY ON THE WITNESS STAND.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Lebkuchner, who is on rial for killing her two little children by making them drink rat poison in tea, testified in her own behalf this morning in Judge Gildersleeve's Court in General Sessions.

She was asked to tell the story of her life, which she proceeded to do in a most matterof-fact way, and was so garrulous at times that it was all her counsel and Judge Gildersleeve could do to keep her within bounds. She said she was thirty-six years old and was born in Worms, in Germany. In Octo-ber, 1871, she came to this country, and in 1877 she married Jacob Lebkuchner, a Ninth wenue salcon-keeper.

They got along fairly well for two or three years, when she said her husband began to frink so that he neglected his business, and drink so that he neglected his business, and finally lafter moving several times, he deserted her in the Spring of 1883.

"Why did you wish to put your children away?" she was asked.
"Because I could not support them."

"When did you first make up your mind to give your children poison?"
"I don't know. I was working very hard all the day before. After I gave the children that support and put them to hed. I sat down all the day before. After I gave the children their supper and put them to bed, I sat down to think.

"I couldn't think of any way out of difficulty. I began to cry and lay down on the bed. I had a frightful pain in my head. My little child Christopher put his arms around her neck and said: 'Mamma, don't cry; 'Then he asked me for water and I went down and got him some. I put my head down and got him some. I put my head

"Then he asked me for water and I went down and got him some. I put my head under the faucet and kept it there, but it didn't do the pain any good. When I went upstairs again I was perfectly crazy.

"All that I remember was that I wanted to throw the stove out of the window, and there were two lights burning in a window across the way that I would like to have smashed."

"Did you not think you were doing anything wrong to kill your children?"

"I thought I had a perfect right to do so, and I think so now."

and I think so now."
"Why did you go to the police and give yourself up? "Because two of the children were dead and one was alive, and I wanted protection for my children."

FORTY MILLION MILES AWAY; Or, A Voyage to Mars.

MARVELLOUS ACCOUNT OF THE PEOPLE AND CIVILIZATION OF ANOTHER PLANET.

SUNOPRIS OF OPENING CHAPTERS.

The story of the trip to Mars is told in a curious cipher manuscrint which is found under very strange circumstances on an island in the Facific. The journey is undertaken in the "astronant," a peculiarly constructed machine resembling a ship. The motive nower is a newly discovered force called apergy. The vorage through space to the planet is successfully made and the intropid travelier lands askely on Mars. The natives at first as actionated, then askell him with deadly dragons and other means of warfare. He is rescued by the authority of Martial personage of rank, who leads him to his home, where the hardy cryoger from the Earth is presented in family. Although treated with kindness he is practically held a prisoner. Meanwhile he studies the ingression of Mars. His hest shightens him as to why the Martian mob ascaulted him, and then gave a resume of Marsh history and customs. The Zampla or Regent, an envoy from the Ruler of Mars, visits the travelent history and customs. The Zampla or Regent, an envoy from the Ruler of Mars, visits the travelent history and customs. The Zampla or Regent, an envoy from the Ruler of Mars, visits the travelent history and customs in a story of the spot where he had let the astronaut to inspect the Evena, the despites of his host Esmo, also goes with him. While the Regent is extending the rescue box, compelling the Regent to lend unwilling assistance. The girl is excellent from protocosts the faster party return to Esmoy. The Regent his become a bitter summy of the traveller. SCROFULOUS SORES.

My daughter has been troubled with scrofulous sore on the right side of her neck for three years; was taken at first with pain in the neck and swelling of the glands about the neck. She had five running sores, and before one was healed up another lump would come. She has taken a great many kinds of medicina, but all failed to help her. This winter we have given her your Burdock Blood Bitters, and it has helped her very much-more than anything else ever used. Since we Buidock have been using B. B. B. ahe has had but one running sors, and that is almost healed up now, with no BLOOD signs of more coming. I can recommend Burdock -John Rule, Ely. Vermont.

Howe & Hummel Appear Alone and Say They Are Eager for Trial,

It was not a sweet expression which Mr. Lawson N. Fuller wore when he came into the Court of General Sessions this morning to appear against his enemies of the late electric sugar combine. He wore a heavy overcoat, with a fur collar and fur cuffs, and was as jaunty as the circumstances would permit.

Howe & Hummel were present, but their five clients, Mrs. Olive E. Friend, Mr. and Mrs. Howard, George and Gus Halstead, were in the Tombs.

It was expected that the two lawyers would nake an effort to have the indictment quashed, but they did nothing of the kind. Mr. Hummel said that they didn't want to quash the indictment and were only too anxious for the trial to begin. The case was not selled.
